

OBSERVATIONS
BY OBSERVER

HE TALKS ON MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS FREELY.

FACTS ARE VERY CURIOUS

Streets Grades Perplexing—Bridges Are Coming—Sidewalks To Be Built.

To the Editor: In a previous letter I asked if the business of a city could be done without stretching the law? The proffreader transposed two words and made it read "is it possible, etc."

I wouldn't allude to it, except that the proffreader has more confidence in human nature than I possess, also that the Gazette is so widely read by intelligent people that we are bound to be very careful about "stretching" the truth.

Streets and Sidewalks

I suppose you have heard of the stone crusher and the final determination to keep it closed a full year. Probably this means that the concern will not be operated again until another council is elected. During the winter, however, it is the intention to take the necessary steps to improve certain streets to be designated later when the special committee shall report and the council adopts the same. And here I may say that if the council had found a million dollars in the treasury last spring the matter of permanent street improvements would still have been held up, on account of the unfinished condition of the sewerage business.

The Equity Involved

I am not an admirer of the plan of making street improvements in Janesville and unless the principle of equity can be maintained from first to last, the cry of oppression is bound to become formidable. At the very best it involves a burdensome tax, which ought to be borne by the general public that gets the benefit instead of the property owner. But somehow this is hedged about as made doubtful by legal forms, and so it goes that if anything is done the property pays for it in the form of a double tax.

The Winter Comes On

And now the winter comes on, and the public health is so good the health officer feels free to go with the hunters. It is learned incidentally the "pest house," now called a hospital, would welcome three new dippers, but a further delay of six months is more probable.

Committees at Work

Special committees of the common council are doing business at the city hall, and the fact gradually appears that sewerage is to be the main question next summer. How much will it cost, who shall foot the bills, how will the tax be levied?

Those Sidewalks Again

Janesville is likely to see a revolution in sidewalk construction next season. The man who builds board sidewalks hereafter in view of the price of lumber will be looked upon as extravagant, if not a lunatic. It is a good sign of the future, that so many cement and brick walks have been laid during the past season. At the same time the policy of furnishing a grade for the owner at the city's expense, is getting to be a serious affair. The city wants to encourage the permanent improvement idea, but it may require an extra engineer to keep up the pace.

Those Toboggan Slides

But those toboggan slides from the old sidewalk grades down to the new are liable to make trouble for the city's judgment fund. Have you seen them? There is a good one not far from the city hall, where both saints and sinners on their way to and fro, are more likely to see sparks than they will be to accept grace, after they slip and get the bumping.

No Frills Visible

But then a reform administration has no frills about it. Everything is merely humdrum with plenty of surprises thrown in. This reminds me that there are many items connected with the city government which might be gotten up separately but the most I can do in these general articles is to skip about lightly, with here and there a remark.

$4,000 Saved On the Bridge

For instance, there is the subject of rebuilding Court street bridge. The history of the bids submitted and rejected would be quite interesting. This was in July and since that time, the price of structural iron and steel has tumbled at such a rate that the difference is over $4,000 in favor of the city.

It is not the intention, however, to be caught napping much longer, and a new bridge will be built next summer for about one-fourth less than the same structure would have cost during the season just ended. There should be two new bridges, one at Racine street, but the people move slowly.

But the Test Is to Come

With the advent of another spring, and the letting of contracts for work and material, the city officials fully realize that they must contend with still another danger. Heretofore the chances for graft and double dealing have been few if that manner. But how about the big contracts for pipes and pipe laying, and all that sort of thing? Can the application of the garbage and thumb screw be made strong enough to prevent the revival of old scandals? We shall see.

Floating Debt Wiped Out

At the last council meeting Chairman Matheson of the finance committee stated in his regular report that with the payment of a $500 note (given by the old council), and the amount of the judgment in the Collins damage suit amounting to between $1400 and $1500, the floating indebtedness of the city would be wiped out.

Such a thing has not years, and is worthy of being mentioned.

Beer Gardens Galore

That the council can make use of the big extra fund it will get from the brewers and beer agencies, there is no doubt. At the same time the beer interests will take on new life and branch out in all directions. The addition of five or six beer agencies to the legalized status of saloons will give us over 50 retail liquor dealers besides the drug store hermits and of beer peddling about town to private families is to be licensed, the regular saloons are liable to find their Sunday trade confiscated and supplied by the energetic beer wagons the day previous.

Rumor Has It

I am told that Mr. Buob has been quietly seeking license for the past fifteen years, and that a beer garden in the heart of the city is not improbable to offset the popularity of the up-river resorts. Of course if these new enterprises materialize more policemen will be required. Previous councils have refused this favor to Mr. Buob, but the saying is "all things come to him who waits."

Ald. Connell the Exception

I said in a former letter that the city government had been criticized for some things of which it was not to blame, but perhaps no more than it deserved. However, in the statement that no opportunity existed for brilliancy was mistaken, and Ald. Connell of the 2nd ward furnishes the proof in his world famous defense of sparking on the schoolhouse steps. Sometimes, so it is said, the goddess of fame casts her mantle by guess instead of merit, but here is a case that speaks for itself. Even sedate pedagogues from far off California are inspired by the facts with which to enlighten their pupils. Other men may dispute over railway rates and primary elections through fifteen columns of eloquence, but if Connell runs for governor he will be very certain of the office. Thirty opposing spellbinders would be unable to stem the whirlwind of his success.

Big Excitement

Then there was Joseph Bostwick an old settler who went to sleep peacefully and woke up $10,000 short. Thieves had descended upon his goods during the night, thereby fulfilling the scriptures. And now the question is where was Officer McGinley? And the signal old soul shakes his head dubiously and wonders himself where he could have been. But has anybody stopped to consider the nights that have elapsed, and the hundreds of times that McGinley has groped his way through the dark alley and caused the spooks and robbers to run for their lives? If Janesville had a hundred policemen on duty somebody would get robbed just the same. Modern genius has yet to invent the policeman who can be in two places at the same time.

May Be Interesting

Aldermen who find it agreeable to attend council meetings or not may find it to their interest to be present at the next meeting as several ordinances are to come up for disposal. Among the number is Ald. Sales' ordinance to repeal the ordinance against riding on the sidewalks with bicycles. Also the ordinance to make corner lot owners build 15 or 20 feet of aprons in addition to the regular walks heretofore maintained by them, the anti-pistol ordinance is also to come up, and a curfew resolution is among the possibilities. This was the agreement at the last council meeting.

One Ventilation

The new city hall has one ventilation shaft only, but the building is not likely to lack fresh air on that account.

Some Saloonkeepers

If saloonkeepers will read their licenses and the bonds that they give they will know all about their actual rights, which do not include the sale of liquor to minors. Moderate drinkers, experienced toppers and many other kinds not necessary to mention can look out for themselves but the boys go overboard soon enough without being encouraged. Saloonkeepers are men of business sense, and whatever they can do to make their trade less objectionable in the community where they are located, cannot but help being for the mutual benefit of both.

Knife the Pharisee

And yet we all know that there are other topics that might be written up with nearly as much grace as to attack the saloons. Are saloonkeepers the only people who do business on the sly? But you will not notice, Mr. Editor, that I am not scolding. If I was in that business I know of more than one bad and skulking "Injun," who after being scalped might look up and truthfully exclaim, "Please sir, will you cut a bigger slice, since heaven knows that I deserve the punishment?"

But this is enough and with your permission I let it go for the edification of doubting Thomases, country clubs, or even church pews.

Respectfully,

OBSERVER.

Passed Through Johnstown.

Did the burglars who broke into J. M. Bostwick's store make their escape in an automobile? There was some reason to suspect that such was the case and Sheriff Appleby left hurriedly for Milwaukee three days ago.

Report From Johnstown.

A report came in from Johnstown that after midnight on the Sunday evening succeeding the robbery, an automobile carrying three men, a woman, and several large bundles of merchandise had passed through that town.

Auto Station Visited.

The sheriff, accompanied by Detective "Denny" Sullivan, visited all of the places in Milwaukee where automobiles were to be rented and interviewed the proprietors. In all instances they stated that they never allowed the touring cars to leave for any length of time without one of their men aboard.

No Clue Was Found

Milwaukee was also thoroughly searched with the idea that the goods might possibly have been in hiding there. Sheriff Appleby worked all day and night most of the time but no tangible clue was found.

Lost A Silk Dress.

When the merchants' carnival was given a few nights ago and the clerks at Bostwick's sought a costly silk dress that was to be used for the occasion, it could not be found. This furnishes further evidence of the daring of the burglars.

This train will appear upon the new schedule which will go into effect Sunday. It will reach Milwaukee at 7:40 a. m., instead of 6:50, as at present.

MOLASSES FOR HORSES

Recently scientific tests have been made as to what is the best food for horses that are unthrifty or sick. Instead of feeding them oats or corn, Molasses Feed is given with the most gratifying results. A horse that weighed 600 pounds gained 40 pounds in two weeks on a molasses diet, and in a month he had added nearly 100 pounds to his weight. All signs of disease disappeared and his new coat of hair was glossy and beautiful. This experiment was but one of hundreds, all showing the wonderful nutritive and health giving properties of Molasses Feed. Farmers, livestock men and others who own horses should give the Molasses Feed a test. It is cheap, and if as represented by scientists, it can remake and rebuild run-down horses, it will prove invaluable to owners of horse flesh. This feed for sale at

WATERED STOCKS.

Two men were discussing stocks in a Wall Street office, not long ago. One of them held in his hand a slip of paper on which was listed a dozen or more blocks of stocks, both railroad and industrial. As he glanced down the list he said to his friend:

"Two months ago, when I invested in this lot of securities, I thought I had a good thing, but if I was obliged to sell today it would mean the loss of a fortune."

His friend took from his pocket a single certificate, nicely engraved in artistic design, and said:

"I'm no speculator and never trade in stocks and I thought I was too sharp to invest in a gold brick, but I wasn't. This piece of paper represents a half interest in a Montana mine and I put up my money after seeing the property. As he glanced today that the whole thing is worthless. I made a water investment pure and simple."

"Yes," his friend replied, "I guess you did. This has been a wet season for stocks, and it is about as difficult to estimate values as it is to pick out the genuine in humanity. I begin to think that the majority of mankind is badly watered, and when the squeezing test is applied they either shrink to nothing, as your investment did, or depreciate beyond recognition as mine has done. There is a good deal of watered stock outside the bond market."

A groceryman was dealing out butter, the other day, from a nice looking jar, when he discovered in the middle of it a nice smooth stone weighing a couple of pounds or more.

He was a good deal surprised and said something about the honest tiler of the soil that wouldn't look well in print. That was watered stock.

A tobacco dealer found in the middle of a bale, a lot of frozen leaf that had been watered to contribute to weight, and he had no trouble in deciding that he was dealing in watered stock.

A farmer bought a sack of coffee supposing that he was getting the genuine article, but his wife discovered the next morning that it was badly adulterated with a clay mixture.

A man bought a suit of clothes which he was led to believe was all wool, but the first month's wear disclosed the fact that the material was inferior shoddy.

A ship yard in Brooklyn, which employed a large force of men, discovered not long since that work was being neglected and many of the men were killing time by idleness and inattention.

A man employed in a city factory deliberately ruined a piece of work, and when called to account for it by the superintendent said: "What's the difference to you, it only gives me more work to replace the damage."

And, so, running through every channel of activity is an element of water that time in its slow but steady process, always brings to the surface.

There are two classes of stocks in the transportation and industrial world, and they are known as preferred and common.

The former has back of them values in the shape of capital invested, while the latter are largely dependent on the success and money making power of the investment.

A railroad company desires to extend its lines, or a factory to increase its output. The capital stock is enlarged by an issue of commission on which small dividends are paid if the venture is successful. If hard times come on and business is depressed, this common or watered stock is the first to feel it.

And if the market becomes thoroughly demoralized, as it has during the past few months, the water is all squeezed out, and there is nothing left but the certificate.

In the speculative world there is another class of stocks whose value is largely represented in the fertile brain of a smooth promoter.

When the Beaumont oil fields were discovered, this class of men reaped a rich harvest. Companies by the score sprung into existence in a night. The only values in sight was a quarter acre of land with a hole in it, but this was enough to warrant heavy capitalization.

The "Lucas," the first well discovered, sold for a million and this set the pace for the wildest era of speculation that the country ever experienced.

There was no preferred stock, but all of it was so very common that in less than six months nothing was left but an unpleasant memory. When the water was squeezed out, the receptacle went with it, and the hole in the ground ceased to be attractive.

The oil speculation stimulated mining ventures of all kinds, and but for the unusual era of prosperity, the country would have been bankrupt on account of the drain caused by this class of investments.

A majority of people in this world need a guardian to keep them from being deluged by watered stocks, and yet men complain about the unequal distribution of wealth.

The machinery of a good many brains is badly adjusted, and when it is worked over time disaster is sure to follow.

Watered stocks always represent fictitious values, and they are not confined to the business world.

It is human nature to put the best side out, and it frequently happens that the exhibit will not bear close inspection.

The girl who is looking for a husband and a home—and the occupation is laudable—likes to be attracted in becoming gown, though her stockings may be out at the heel. She may be all smiles to her lover and all frowns to her mother, the former will never find it out until the sham vanishes under the close association of the new home, and then he will wonder why he made the investment.

The young man in search of a wife is careful of personal appearances and habits, but a year after the prize is won, unless he has back of him the value represented in preferred stock, you would hardly recognize him as he reels out of the saloon, shabby in appearance and vulgar in deportment.

He has had the water squeezed out of him, and there is so little left of true manhood and real value that the young wife is in despair before the honeymoon is fairly over.

The world is full of shams. People of ordinary means, who are equipped to make the journey of life at ordinary pace, are fired with ambition to keep up with the procession at any cost, forgetful of the fact that there is always a day of settlement.

The church is not free from this class of investors and the cloak of righteousness is frequently used in the service of the devil.

In olden times these people were called hypocrites, and no better name has been found to describe them.

Watered stock of whatever nature is always of uncertain value and there is nothing that stands the test of time and fire, but pure gold. It is always worth par, and commands respect in every market.

THE NEW PRESS.

The Gazette's new Web perfecting press is being installed, and the management hope to use the machine for the first time next Tuesday evening. The press room however will not be open for inspection until the latter part of the week as many changes are being made which require time to complete.

When the machinery is ready to run the office will be as thoroughly equipped as any office in the state outside of Milwaukee. The Gazette is now printing about 25,000 papers per week including its daily and semi-weekly editions. This means 50,000 impressions as every paper passes through the press twice. It also means about 30 hours work for a man and boy. The new press will accomplish the same work in about 6 hours, with a single attendant.

On one route east of the city there are 27 families, and all but 30 of them are regular subscribers to the old weekly paper.

This proportion holds good through out the county. Of the 3500 farmers, 3000 of them take the paper. There is no medium by which the merchant can talk to the farmer so cheaply and so effectively as through the columns of the Gazette.

The county is to be covered by a rural free delivery service the 15th of December, and the Gazette, with its modern equipment will be in shape to meet demands for prompt delivery. There are about 3000 families in Janesville and more than three-fourths of them are Daily Gazette readers.

Gazette advertising always brings results. There is a good deal of hot air connected with the Anti-Babcock campaign in the Third district. The congressman has a few enemies who would like to see him defeated, but they will find him a hard man to beat.

The Chicago street car strike is ended, and 59 of the strikers are out of a job. The strike cost plenty of money and annoyance and organization.

ed labor gained nothing by the demonstration. It is a poor time to strike.

Thanksgiving foot ball was full of surprises. The Indians surprised the Methodists on the Northwestern field, while Minnesota astonished the natives of Badgerdom at the capital city. Stoughton was a little annoyed over results in Janesville, but no logs were broken.

The outlook for President Roosevelt is encouraging. A forecast of the next electoral college composed of 478 delegates he is reasonably sure of all but 161. New York is classed as doubtful but the state will swing into line at the proper time.

PRESS COMMENT

Chicago News: It has been decided by the courts that Christian Science may be practiced in Ohio, but it is doubtful if it could do much of anything for Tom Johnson.

Chicago Inter Ocean: "There is no rose without its thorn. The dwellers in steam-heated flats are compelled to be polite to the janitor."

Buffalo Express: Another cut has been made in the price of whisky. The dog days are not without their pleasant side for the Kentucky colonels.

Sunday Service: Rev. R. C. Denison will speak to men at the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Subject, "A Man of the World." This special hour for men on Sundays can be made a practical uplift to all who will accept the opportunity. All men are cordially invited to attend and bring a friend.

The interest is growing and men are developing through the short informal talks following the practical presentation of a live topic by the pastor. The series of talks by the pastors of our city are very interesting. Plan to hear Mr. Denison tomorrow and enjoy a pleasant and profitable hour from 3 to 4 o'clock.

TRUTH AND FALSEHOOD.

Training the wit to agility is cleverness.

A chronic liar is the evolution of a lover of sensationalism.

When the case is critical one may always frankly refuse to say anything.

It is better to anger by silence than to earn future contempt by an untruth.

Aside from the immorality of lying, it is a deforming habit that grows upon one.

The girl who cannot tell the truth does not exist, but many are they who lie by preference.

There are times when to tell the truth seems nearly impossible. A little tact may avert both the lie and trouble.

There are liars born, but more are made. It is possible for a truthful mother to incite her daughter to false witnessing.

To make a liar is easy. The formula is, to two parts motherly curiosity add one part parental severity, and Sapphira is complete.

Between the truth and exaggeration lies the Gulf of Doubt. The use of adjectives minimizes credence and makes the user ridiculous.

The damage done to the reputation by the habit of falsifying is incalculable. One may be cruelly misjudged even when dealing in verity by those who know that the speaker is addicted to misstatements.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

LITTLE THOUGHTS.

To be proud of learning is the greatest ignorance.

Prudence is merely well-trained common sense.

Few of us manage to keep pace with our good intentions.

Think twice before you speak; then perhaps you will not speak.

More than physical culture is required to make a man strong-minded.

Lack of originality in some people's conversation displays their good judgment.

Self-esteem is often the partner of ambition, but it should be the silent partner.

The less a man knows the easier it is to convince him that he knows everything.

The man who has too little confidence in himself generally has too much in others.

"Health brings wealth," but this is another of those rules that will not work both ways.

No man ever did a designed injury to another but at the same time he did a greater to himself.

When a man has not a good reason for doing a thing he has one good reason for letting it alone.

Many a man who has the reputation of knowing a lot manages very successfully to conceal his knowledge.—London Answers.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

The Rev. T. H. Walker of Franklin, Md., has been chosen moderator of the Presbytery of Baltimore.

The Rev. William Alexander Curtis of the Edinburgh university has been appointed professor of systematic theology in Aberdeen university.

Bishop Tikhon of the Greek Orthodox church of San Francisco, who resigned his church last spring and went to Russia on account of sorrow because the brother whom he loved best had died, expects shortly to return to California.

Retiring after a pastorate of fifty-one years in the Reformed churches at Farmersville and Arndts, Pa., the Rev. Daniel F. Brendle, aged 81 years, will have an annual pension of $300 and all the marriage and baptismal fees that come his way.

Bishop Phelan of Pittsburgh owns a remarkable set of church vestments. They were brought into this country from the Philippine Islands at the time of the Tenth Pennsylvania's return. They are supposed to be the work of native Filipino sisters, and apparently are 100 years old.

SPECIAL FUND TO BE COLLECTED

CATHOLICS WILL HELP NATIONAL UNIVERSITY TOMORROW.

POPE'S RECOMMENDATION

It is the First of Ten Collections To Be Taken Up for the Purpose.

A special collection will be taken up in the Catholic churches of the city on Sunday, November 29th, for the benefit of the Catholic University of America, and this money is secured in response to an appeal which was sent out by Cardinal Gibbons to the bishops and archbishops of the United States. The Very Rev. Augustin F. Schinner, administrator of the arch-diocese, has sent a letter to the clergy in his arch-diocese, asking them to announce the collection. It will be the first of a series of ten annual collections for this purpose to be taken up on the first Sunday in Advent each year.

The Letter. Cardinal Gibbons is the chancellor of the university, and his letter says in part: "This work is of such nature that it must progress. It cannot be safely be allowed to remain stationary."

The university has a plant and endowments amounting in all to about two million dollars which has been contributed by the generosity of our clergy and laity. It is now necessary that we make good what has already been done by adding such endowments as will complete the facilities, meet ordinary expenses and place the institution on a self-supporting basis.

First Recommendation of Pope. In all earnestness, therefore, as chancellor of our university I make this appeal to you, and through you, to our clergy and people in order that the first recommendation of our holy father, Pius Xth, may meet with such generous response as to prove publicly our loyalty to the vicar of Christ.

MARKET TALK IN THE WINDY CITY

General Gossip on the Condition of the Chicago Exchange at One O'clock.

Lower cables and favorable weather for the movement of grain through the northwest caused easier opening. Around eight o'clock there was active demand for exports and good buying by St. Louis which pushed the price to 80 1/2 for May, a new high price in this movement. At this figure there was very liberal profit taking and the market weakened under the pressure. Armour was reported an excellent buyer at the decline. Considerable December wheat has been bought today by two large commission houses and May sold against these purchases, putting the Dec. price at a premium over the May. This is rather significant and would suggest further manipulation in the Dec. option. As showing why we are bulls on wheat a little news from Minneapolis may be of interest. The millers of that city have during nine months of this year exported over 800,000 barrels of flour to Japan, while in the same period of last year the exports were only 300,000 barrels. This shows where our wheat is going and that the Japanese are getting ready any day to take a big bite out of our wheat. Wheat should sell off some but if you get a chance to buy it Monday around 79c do so.

Corn. Market slightly lower. Cables came lower. Liberal selling by local houses caused an easy tone in the corn market and resulted in 1/2c decline. Corn is in a rut and looks like lower prices before much recovery but on a sharp break it can be bought for a turn.

Oats. Market decidedly active but weaker. It looks as if it was following corn and would suggest buying only on quick dips and selling on any fair rally. Provisions made a good recovery from yesterday's low prices, the sharp decrease in receipts of hogs being responsible. On the bulge packers were again liberal sellers and we look for a lower price. FLOYD, CRAWFORD & CO.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Moving Picture Exhibition Promises to Be Most Pleasing.

The Solig Polyscope has been found to be the most complete and scientific moving picture machine made, and is the only one free from the objectionable flicker, so disagreeable to the eyes. This is the machine to be used in reproducing the Janesville fire department run, which was made a few days ago for use with other moving pictures of humorous and panoramic views at the moving picture entertainment to be given by the firemen at Myers Grand opera house Dec. 7 and 8th. Many of the views to be exhibited have been imported from Europe and the entertainment promises to be out of the ordinary. A delightful evening will be accorded to the audience. The money derived from the exhibition will go to the Firemen's Relief society, a most worthy association. Tickets are now on sale at the fire stations and by members and at Tarrant & Osgood's, 25 and 50c.

Michael Murphy. Late yesterday afternoon Michael Murphy, an aged and highly respected resident of Beloit, died in the hospital in this city. The deceased was about sixty-five years of age. The remains were taken to the undertaking rooms of D. Ryan & Son. The funeral will be held from St. Mary's church, this city, at half past eight o'clock Monday morning.

Three Blazes on Thanksgiving. The department was called out twice on Thanksgiving day to quiet small blazes. The first was at 10:30 and was a grass fire scare at the corner of Washington and Maple Court. It was a still alarm and although there was little need for the department, the patrol car and one hose cart was sent. The second was in the Carle block at 12:55 p. m. The office of O. Paulson, the tailor, was filled with smoke caused by rags left on a stove. During the football game at Athletic park some boys lit a bonfire in the vacant lot adjoining. The fire spread so rapidly in the dry grass that it looked for a while as though part of the fence would catch, but the boys stamped out the flames in the dangerous portions of the field.

MAD DOG VISITS PLEASANT STREET

IT BITES THREE CATS, SEVERAL PUPPIES, ATTACKS JAS. LITTLE.

PETS HAVE THE RABIES

A Wholesale Slaughter is Necessary—Neighborhood Saved by Prompt Action, from Reign of Terror.

Prompt action and watchfulness on the part of James Little who lives west on Pleasant street near the brick-yard, saved the inhabitants of that section of the city, at least, from a reign of terror this week. The beginning of the trouble was a strange dog that appeared in his yard about three weeks ago. The animal manifested a vicious nature and bit some cats and several of the pups in a litter owned by Mr. Little, and finally attacked the owner himself, and tore one of his shoes.

Puppies Have Rabies. After this happened, Mr. Little promptly secured a gun and killed the unwelcome visitor. In the course of a few days the three cats that had been attacked began to act queerly and several of the puppies gave unmistakable signs of being afflicted with the rabies. A wholesale slaughter was the only alternative and without any hesitation the whole litter of little dogs and the cats were destroyed.

Last of the Pets. Just before Thanksgiving day the mother, deprived of her little ones, began to grow old and ugly and Thursday morning she became afflicted with hydrophobia in violent form. Mr. Little again secured a gun, and shot the last of his pets with much regret. He had cause to be thankful, however, that the dog which had attacked him had not inflicted any wound through the shoe leather.

THE MISSION HAD A BIG DINNER

Thanksgiving Day Was Well Celebrated at the Mary Kimball Mission.

A happier crowd could not have been found, or more beautiful scene witnessed upon earth, than was seen at the Mary Kimball mission Thanksgiving Day. Preparations were made to feed 250 children. Many of these little ones had not eaten a square meal since last Thanksgiving, and have come to look forward all the year to this day of festivity and gladness. The culinary preparations began and continued until Thursday afternoon. Tables were gotten in place Tuesday afternoon and laid, ready for the feast which was served in the chapel at 2 p. m. The guests began to arrive at 9:30 a. m. The menu consisted of oysters, ducks, chickens, fruit, vegetables, salads, celery and in fact nothing was lacking to make the day one which will never be forgotten by those present. Visitors who came to enjoy the scene, were heard to exclaim: "Where in the world do they put it all?" All classes were represented among the diners. The tables were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums of which the Main street green house donated a liberal supply. Thirty one baskets were sent out the following morning to needy families. Miss Kimball desires to thank the many kind friends who assisted in making this day one of joy and gladness.

A POINTER ON MILK

To insure absolute purity we largely increase the necessary cost of our milk. We pay the farmer more for milk for our dairy because we demand better care taken of the milk. He MUST OBSERVE all sanitary laws. We expect to have to pay for this.

Pasteurizing is another additional expense but it eliminates all bacteria and renders the milk absolutely PURE and HEALTHFUL. But without purity the expense would be lost. WE OUGHT TO CHARGE MORE THAN WE DO. We are selling you the best milk in the city at the same price the unpasteurized is sold. Our milk is used in hundreds of class homes in the city in preference to any other milk. Try it and be convinced.

The Glorious Bird—

[Copyright, 1934, by Mary Hallock Foote.]

"Merciful Heaven! What are you saying? Do I want to see that man tonight, alone? Did Abby send him that word from me? Is that what she has done?"

Wan responded with nods and grins, and mopped himself with tremulous hands.

"You no tell Abby, Miss Bingham?"

"Don't be afraid. Tell me what this thing means. Tell me all you know about it, this instant."

"You catchem all light: Abby send word you want see Da'le. I save all 'ting she say. I pick up some tin can; I found old dump plenty tin can—sell him some Chinaman—melt him—get plenty lead—make some little money."

"Never mind the cans! Tell me why Abby did this thing. Does she want Da'le to get hurt? Is that it?"

"I no sabe. Abby know heap bad men. Union miner; no like Mike McGowan; call him 'scab.' No like Da'le. Nail paper on Da'le house—say you go—Da'le laugh—say no go anywhere. Da'le heap good shoot. Mike McGowan heap good shoot. All time heap good friends. Union men get mad; no can catch Da'le. Send word lady want see—all self 'lone'—lone 'clock night. Da'le come see lady. Mike no come. Lady no come. Man sleep behind tree—plenty gun—good-by Da'le!"

Wan illustrated his meaning by an expressive pantomime, which was unnecessary so far as Faith was concerned. She understood him perfectly. She looked at the clock; it was half-past ten.

"Where is this place?" she asked.

"You no want go there, Miss Bingham!" Wan protested, hurriedly.

"I want you to go there, and take this letter—to Mr. Darle. Faith was writing the note as she talked. 'You are a very good man, Wan. You have saved a man's life. I will give you anything you ask if you'll get this letter there in time.'

"N-n, Miss Bingham!" Wan grunted, an impassioned negative. "I no can go that place. Heap bad place, heap bad men."

"But you must go; there is no one else to go. What, you won't take the letter? You miserable creature, will you let that man be killed? You wretched coward, did you come here to talk?"

Wan was shaking in his loose starched blouse; his lips and nails were livid; his eyes rolled in his head with fear. He was incapable of speech. He had exposed the plot, out of spite to Abby, without an idea of possible consequences to himself. Faith saw that his eyes were on the door. She flew and locked it, and set her back against it.

"Now, see here, Wan; you must tell me where that place is. I am going myself. Hush, will you? You will go with me as far as the place, because I might go wrong. Then you can run away. Will you do that? You need not be afraid with me; they will not shoot me."

Wan signified by incoherent mutterings that she must not, and that he could not, and he reiterated his warning: "Heap bad place, heap bad men."

"Very well; then I will go tell Abby what you told me. Abby's bad men will catch you some dark night; then it will be 'Good-by Wan.' Do you sabe? Will you go, now, or shall I tell Abby? Quick—make up your mind!"

In that moment Wan prayed his gods that the whole impossible race of white women might be forever accursed; but in the meantime he decided to do what this strange, terrible young one demanded. He had thought her much the best of her extraordinary kind; but they were all alike. "No got sense. Heap dam' crazy."

Faith did not drink her tea; it grew cold in the pot while the clock ticked on, and the drowsy fire fell to ashes on the hearth.

And in the dining-room they were singing in a hoarse, staggering male chorus:

"O my darling, O my darling,
O my darling Clementine;
You are lost and gone forever,
Dreadful sorry, Clementine!"

VI.

UNDER THE TAMARACKS.

Darle thought that he had cleverly outwitted his friendly double, on the night of Tuesday, and sped away alone through the woods to the place of meeting, avoiding the railroad track in the gulch as likely to bring him more company than he wanted. The Big Horn men "kept" the track hot, as Mike expressed it.

The risk he was taking, he argued, was quite the ordinary one; he, with many another man at that time in the Coeur d'Alene, was taking it every day. About the other risk, of not going, there could be no reasoning. His heart closed with a pang, and stopped his thinking, whenever he fancied that girl wanting him, waiting for him, perhaps, and he not there. It was not, he owned, a message or a messenger befitting his mountain life; but by that token the name was enough, and was he to quarrel with happiness because it came a little sooner or otherwise than he had expected or deserved? It was a time of general uncertainty and peril. Who could tell the needs, the fears, of a girl so isolated, and in such company as that "outfit" at the Big Horn? Knowing what he knew, Darle thought of the mine as a Circe's palace of the wild and woolly west, with Abby Steers for the enchantress, and his life as the Lady Una, beset by brutish types of humanity in shapes of unblushing deformity. But he had plenty of imagination, and he was living the life of solitude and repression which breeds exaggerated fancies. Moreover, in his thoughts the charm of the girl, like a strong light, blackened the adjacent shadows.

The moon, which had fitfully lighted their way down the trail on the night of the storm, was too old and belated to assist at this meeting. Under the tamaracks the darkness was impenetrable. The lone cedar whispered to itself, and seemed to pause and listen for responses from the ranks of standing timber that mounted the gulch, file above file, with a wedge of night sky opening a way to the zenith.

The car that was to carry the dinner guests back to Wallace stood on the track, the engine steaming. Darle took his station under the cedar, and waited in silence. The alternate whispering and hushing of the forest continued; often the sound was that of feet carefully lifted, and cautiously set down in the rustling underbrush. Momentarily his errand there seemed more and more preposterous and foolishly unreal; he could have laughed aloud had the place and the hour been merrier.

When he considered that at least half an hour must have passed, and no sound that he could distinctly interpret was heard, he took out his watch and struck a match to look at the time. As the spark flamed up, a volley of pistol-shots pattered about him and pecked at the tree above his head. The flashes came from the edge of the tamaracks that darkly environed the small, eared space where he stood on every side, but that next the gulch; on that side was the trail.

He jumped behind the cedar, and emptied his pistol in the direction of the flashes. At the same instant three or four shots in rapid succession cracked from across the trail, and with a characteristic yell and bound Mike was at his side, holding forth with his gun from his own side of the tree. The men could hear each other's breathing, but neither spoke till Darle said:

"Load for me, Mike; my right flipper is hit."

"The beggars is leavin'!" said Mike. "Are ye hit bad?"

Mike's counter-ambush had disconcerted the executive committee, their shots fell off, and they were dispersing at a trot through the woods, when, with a rush of light skirts across the dark evergreens, Faith came flying, wild with the fear that she had come too late.

"Where are you?" she cried. "Oh, answer, somebody! Are you killed?"

Though she addressed "somebody" it was Mike who answered promptly:

"Kape quit, darlin'; he's here, and he's hurt."

Darle was at her side, speechless, but mightily glad; he did not feel his wound.

"I have for several years suffered at times with heart trouble. I got so bad I could not sleep half the night, and had to sit up on the edge of the bed lots of times to get breath. Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. After using them I recovered, and have had better health since then than before for several years. I can heartily recommend them for heart trouble."—MRS. J. J. HIGH CLASS DRUGGISTS

AND — OTHERS.

The better class of druggists, everywhere, are men of scientific attainments and high integrity, who devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow men in supplying the best of remedies and purest medicinal agents of known value, in accordance with physicians' prescriptions and scientific formula. Druggists of the better class manufacture many excellent remedies, but always under original or official names and they never sell false brands, or imitation medicines. They are the men to deal with when in need of anything in their line, which usually includes all standard remedies and corresponding adjuncts of a first-class pharmacy and the finest and best of toilet articles and preparations and many useful accessories and remedial appliances. The earning of a fair living, with the satisfaction which arises from a knowledge of the benefits conferred upon their patrons and assistance to the medical profession, is usually their greatest reward for long years of study and many hours of daily toil. They all know that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative remedy and that it gives universal satisfaction, and therefore they are selling many millions of bottles annually to the well informed purchasers of the choicest remedies, and they always take pleasure in handing out the genuine article bearing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package. They know that in cases of colds and headaches attended by biliousness and constipation and of weakness or torpidity of the liver and bowels, arising from irregular habits, indigestion, or over-eating, that there is no other remedy so pleasant, prompt and beneficial in its effects as Syrup of Figs, and they are glad to sell it because it gives universal satisfaction.

Owing to the excellence of Syrup of Figs, the universal satisfaction which it gives and the immense demand for it, imitations have been made, tried and condemned, but there are individual druggists to be found, here and there, who do not maintain the dignity and principles of the profession and whose greed gets the better of their judgment, and who do not hesitate to recommend and try to sell the imitations in order to make a larger profit. Such preparations sometimes have the name—"Syrup of Figs"—or "Fig Syrup" and of some piratical concern, or fictitious fig syrup company, printed on the package, but they never have the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of the package. The imitations should be rejected because they are injurious to the system. In order to sell the imitations they find it necessary to resort to misrepresentation or deception, and whenever a dealer passes off on a customer a preparation under the name of "Syrup of Figs" or "Fig Syrup," which does not bear the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of the package, he is attempting to deceive and mislead the patron who has been so unfortunate as to enter his establishment, whether it be large or small, for if the dealer resorts to misrepresentation and deception in one case he will do so with other medicinal agents, and in the filling of physicians' prescriptions, and should be avoided by every one who values health and happiness. Knowing that the great majority of druggists are reliable, we supply the immense demand for our excellent remedy entirely through the druggists, of whom it may be purchased everywhere, in original packages only, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, but as exceptions exist it is necessary to inform the public of the facts, in order that all may decline or return any imitation which may be sold to them. If it does not bear the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, do not hesitate to return the article and to demand the return of your money, and in future go to one of the better class of druggists who will sell you what you wish and the best of everything in his line at reasonable prices.

WONDERFUL DOG ENTERTAINS MANY

Daughter of Bossie Furnishes Amusement to a Chicago Sunday School by Her Sagacity.

Many persons about Janesville remember that wonderful dog Bossie and the knowing and almost human sagacity with which she was able to answer question no matter how difficult which were asked of her. Bossie died an untimely death by poison but she left a daughter who is said to be equally as wonderful as her mother. The following account of her teaching in a Chicago Sunday school will interest many readers who saw the mother perform in the parlors of the Myers House on her last visit.

Tessie, a Scotch collie dog, occupied the pulpit in the Sunday school at the St. James Methodist church, Ellis Avenue and Forty-sixth streets yesterday morning, and in answer to questions told the children the number of books in the Bible, how many verses were in the Sunday school lesson, how many sons Abraham had and even did some subtracting.

This intelligent dog is of the third generation of a remarkable family which have been known by the name of Bozzies. George Chayrin owns the animals and asserts they have intellectual powers more highly developed along some lines than is common in human beings.

Tessie was placed on the rostrum and asked:

"How many apostles were there?" She barked one, and after a momentary pause, gave two more short barks, thus indicating the number twelve.

"What is the number of the chapter in which our lesson for today is found?" was the next question.

Tessie barked twice and then, three times, correctly indicating the twenty-third chapter.

"How many sons had Abraham?" Once then twice, Tessie barked, and then jumped around delightfully when the children clapped their hands.

"How many days are there in the year?" asked Mr. Clayton.

Without hesitation Tessie answered 365.

"Subtract two from the first digit, was the next order."

Tessie barked once and was quiet. Mr. Clayton took his dog into the next room and one of the pupils was asked to put a number on the blackboard. The figure 7 was made and then erased. Tessie was brought in and Mr. Clayton said to her:

"There was a number on the blackboard. These two gentlemen here know what it was. Can you tell me?"

Tessie looked anxiously from one to the other of the two gentlemen who had seen the figure written and erased. Suddenly she began and barked seven times.

In discussion the remarkable exhibition, a member of the church said: "Tessie belongs to a wonderful breed of dogs. In Scotland they send one of those Scotch collies out after ten sheep, and ten sheep are brought back. But as regards Tessie's most unusual development, Mr. Clayton tells me he knows no other explanation save that of telepathic influence."

LABOR TALK FOR WORKMEN

Patrick Calhoun of New York, a member of the Arbitration Commission which recently awarded the union employees of the United Railways of San Francisco an advance in wages, has filed his dissenting opinion, giving his reasons why no advance should have been granted. The award, however, stands.

Through the mediation of the citizens' committee of Chicago a complete shutdown of the Inland Steel company has been averted. While the striking employees of the sheet mill of the plant were in session the committee made its appearance and reported that the steel company had agreed to reconsider the proposed cut of 12 1/2 cents. This action has minimized a partial shut-down and it is believed that the entire plant will be in operation in less than two weeks.

The sixty-seven ejection suits instituted against union miners by the Coal Creek Coal company were decided at Coal Creek, Tenn., this week. The company won in sixty-five, the union miners winning the two remaining cases. Proceedings will, it is thought, be instituted at once to excuse the ejections, removing the miners from the company's houses. The Fraterville and Turle Creek miners are still idle, and may remain so until the ejection proceedings are terminated. Union officials have not announced whether they will appeal.

The cotton manufacturers of Rhode Island, following the recent action of Falls River mill owners, in deciding on a reduction of 10 per cent. in wages on Nov. 23, have ordered a general cut-down affecting practically every mill in the state and several in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The reduction will become operative in some plants on Nov. 23, and in others a week later. In all about 25,000 hands will have their pay reduced.

The committees representing the Marble Dealers' association and the Union of Marble Workers, disagreed as to terms of a settlement of the strike of the employees which has progressed in the east for several weeks.

Several thousand machinists of the M. & T. railway, in Texas, are on a strike.

Fully 2,800 men employed at the Carnegie Steel works at Homestead resumed work Monday after a shut-down of three weeks.

The Knights of Labor will hold their next convention in Milwaukee, Wis., in November, 1904.

CURED WHEN OTHERS FAILED

1036 Winneba Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 25, 1902.

Wine of Cardui can always be relied upon to cure when everything else fails. It is a certain cure for female diseases in their worst forms. I suffered for years with ulceration. Intense pains in the womb and ovaries and dreadful headaches afflicted me for my work. Finally I grew so ill that I had to keep to my bed. The pains were so intense at times as to cause spasms and a disagreeable discharge drained my life forces. In my extremity after all else had failed, I tried Wine of Cardui. After using it for two weeks I began to improve so rapidly that I felt encouraged to keep up the treatment, which I did for eight weeks, but at the end of that time I was entirely cured. What a relief was mine and how new and beautiful life looked to me when my health was restored. Only those who have passed through such a siege of sickness as I have will understand how much I value Wine of Cardui. It is indeed a boon to sick women.

Secretary, North Chicago Women's Verein.

To Make a Test of Telepathy

THE most remarkable contest of the age—if contest it may be called—is that arranged by William T. Stead of London and Professor Garrett P. Serviss of New York for a scientific test of the possibilities of telepathy, or the transmission of thought without any direct communication by the senses.

This unique contest has its origin in the following announcement of Mr. Stead recently cabled from London to a New York paper: "From positive evidence that I have at hand I have to make without qualification the statement that the transmission of long distance messages by direct mental vibration—i. e., telepathy—is an accomplished fact."

In support of this rather sweeping assertion Mr. Stead recited in detail the results of experiments made recently between London and Nottingham, England, a distance of 125 miles. In Nottingham was stationed Mr. Franks, a telepathist of note, while at the office of Mr. Stead's publication, the Review of Reviews, in London was placed another telepathist, Dr. Richardson, an American, who had undertaken to receive telepathic messages from Mr. Franks. The committee who, with Mr. Stead, had the experiments in charge telegraphed three messages to Mr. Franks, which the latter was to send telepathically to Dr. Richardson.

"Between 7 and 8 o'clock, after Dr. Richardson had spent the time in serene mental concentration," asserts Mr. Stead, "he received faithfully the three messages telepathically to him by Mr. Franks. There existed absolutely no chance of collusion."

The conclusion of the London Journalist that this demonstration had established beyond question the certitude of mental telepathy was doubted by Professor Garrett P. Serviss, an American scientist and astronomer, who declared in the Journal which had published Mr. Stead's original cablegram that the tests were "decidedly unsatisfactory scientifically."

Mr. Stead then challenges Professor Serviss in behalf of Dr. Richardson and Mr. Franks to propose a test which he would regard as satisfactory. The American scientist promptly accepted the challenge, submitting conditions acceptable to the challenger.

Thus the world is to have an extraordinary exhibition of the possibility of thought transmission which, if successful, may be of incalculable importance to mankind. If Mr. Stead is able to "make good" it may be counted as among the most marvelous demonstrations of an age of marvels.

While innumerable frauds and countless acts of legerdemain have been performed under the various names of close sympathy may induce a telepathic chain of brain waves along which a message of thought may go straight to its goal without loss of energy due to distance? May not the words "far" and "near" lose their meaning in these subtle regions of unsubstantial thought? I dare to suggest it."

Another notable telepathist is Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church.

"Telepathy is no longer a theory," said Bishop Fallows; "it is a fact. I have been interested in it for years, and the thing I am pondering now is how to bring it into common everyday use. It works on the same principle as the new wireless telegraphy of Mr. Marconi. I will hail him as a benefactor of the human race who will teach people how to use this tremendous psychic force."

Bishop Fallows was first attracted to telepathy by a strange case which happened in his own parish. A young merchant who had several days before buried his wife was awakened in the night by her voice. He heard her distinctly calling his name and asking for help. So impressed was he by this mysterious message that he sprang to his feet, dressed and drove at once to the grave. When he uncovered the coffin and broke it open he found his wife alive and moving in an unconscious trance.

Lifting her into the carriage, he drove her quickly to the house, summoned medical aid and had the unspeakable pleasure of seeing her regain her health.

Phenomena like this might be multiplied almost without end, but they suffice to indicate the marvelous possibilities of telepathy. It may be a long time yet before every man will be his own telephone and send his messages at will through the ether to the uttermost parts of the earth, but in view of the twentieth century developments in the transmission of intelligence and electric energy, without visible or material conductors, we may well say with Hamlet:

There are more things in heaven and

mind reading, mental suggestion and thought transference, which are all embraced in telepathy, and while numberless cases of what are merely strange coincidences are attributed to telepathy, there is undoubtedly "something in it." Scientists of eminence and sincere agree that there have

The population of Detroit is 31 per cent German, while that of Boston is but 5.

The diversity of tongues to be found in one country is often a matter of surprise. Last year the Bible society's agents sold the scriptures in fifty-three languages in the Russian empire, in twenty-eight languages in Burma, in thirty in South Malaysia, and in fifty-three in the Egyptian agency.

DON'T DO IT!

You coal buyers that are skirmishing around to find good coal at the right prices needn't "skirmish" any more. Come right over to my place and talk coal or wood, I don't care which. I'll wager you that some of my coal goes into your cellar. My presumption is based upon "cold weather facts." You need coal and I need the money. Furthermore, I've got all kinds of good coal and plenty of sawed wood.
